

Dear Committee,

I have previously written a comment to you on my opposition to revising the current Library Board of Trustees from an advisory board to a governing board.

As a current member of the board, I think that making the board into a governing board will remove decision making powers from the Director, which is part and parcel of the job of the Director, and give it to too many individuals who may not be all aligned in unison with their goals and aspirations for the library.

In other words, I feel that decision making powers should devolve to one person after hearing and taking into consideration the opinions of the various board members.

Decision making, if dissipated, is diluted.

In my opinion, things are working just fine as they are.

Sincerely,

Gaffney J. Feskoe
